Wednesday Workshop:

Prototyping Design Research Tools

The key proposition is that we as designers need to practice inventive-tool-making as part of the research process itself. This workshop invites participants to proactively prototype new design research tools and manuals for their use. The workshop will be hands-on and needless to say a lot of fun! All are welcome.

Hosted by Aditya and Soren for the programme Prototyping Practices

Thanks for your contributions. Future articles & photos can be sent to: wozzop@gmail.com by Friday evenings. We love hearing from you!

Who are you and why should I care?

A short interview with the new head and co-head of Ställverket, Mohammed Aldlaymi and Jillian Buchheim.

What does the position head and co-head do in Ställverket?
- (Mo) (Jil) We’re the main link between the students and the staff at UID. We’re a part of almost everything that’s happening within Ställverket. For example; we arrange the meetings, we make crazy ideas into reality and we’ll get a key. So if you as a student or staff has an idea or question, please come to us.

What key?
- (Mo) To the Ställverket room.
- (Mo) I’m the bad cop but with a face of an angel.
- (Jil) I think we’re both bad cops (just as it should be).

Are you natural born leaders?
- (Mo) Yes, I lead everywhere I go.
- (Jil) Yes, sometimes I fight it, but yes.

If you had world power for one day, what would you do?
- (Jil) WORLD PEACE!....haha no I don’t know.
- (Mo) I would make it fair and equal for everyone. And buy colorblind glasses for every colorblind that can’t afford it. (FAST FACT: Mo is currently struggling with the doctor’s news that he’s color blind)

 UID Kizomba noobs #lifeatuid

For the next week issue Wozzop going to continue to interview the new representatives of Ställverket but also start a weekly interview with one of our lovely students or staff. SO let’s get the show started, which random pal should we start to interview?
- (Mo) (Jil) Ruben Eriksson, BA3.
